Conservatively rated at 100w, its got gobs of power. I hooked it up to a pair of Cambridge Soundworks M80 speakers. These are large 3way monitors that are pretty good speakers. But paired with the Carver receiver, they really came alive, and have never sounded better. Tight, extended bass, and better top end extension. This receiver has connections for 2 pairs of speakers. The B set has an option called Ambiance which allows the B speakers to provide ambiance like rear surround speakers. So you can use it as a preamp only or as an amp only. The phono input is excellent, music from all sources sounds great. If you can find one at a reasonable price, grab it. You won't be disappointed. <http://dongkinhtourhue.com/upload/ecs-gs7610-manual.xml>

carver hr-752 service manual.

Reviewed Dec 21st, 2016 by tomez2 Stereo receivers are just not built like this anymore. Killer Stereo Receiver with tanklike build quality. Beautiful warm Carver sound. The TFM stands for Transfer Function Modified which means it is designed to sound like one of Carvers acclaimed Tube Amps. Nice sounding phono input. CD direct. Bass, Mid, and Treble controls are perfectly centered at usable frequencies. Same for the loudness switch. Sonic Hologram generator built in which requires serious and careful speaker placement and can be amazing if done properly, but can be switched out by remote for instant comparison or if it is not your thing. Pre main OUT and IN Jacks actually makes this an excellent separate Preamp and main power amp in one chassis. Has a nice simple remote. Notice I kept referring to the excellent sound on all inputs more than once. Enormous power even more into 4 ohms for which it is rated, huge dynamics, Notice I kept referring to its sound Comments To purchase HR752 spares or accessories, please contact the company via their website or visit an authorised retailer. The TFM35 will be a good upgrade. I bought the TFM35 based primarily on Carvers rep, plus I already had the HR752 and think its still a great little receiver after 21 years. Since you have the HR772, I probably couldnt ask for a better recommendation, thanks! Plugging it in will be the third thing I do. First, gonna put it on the shelf and wipe fingerprints. Third, then gonna plug it in. But which outlet A switched outlet on the HR752. On the Monster Power HTS1000 PowerCenter. Google it if you are still unsure. There must be a very good reason for not using the switched outlet or power conditioner; but what is it.

Do those affect the power amp somehow Most preamps or receivers with power outlets dont have heavy enough switches required to power an amp. Carver recommends that the amp be plugged into the wall outlet.. Then I bought a C2 preamp to use instead of the preamp section of the receiver. Then I bought a TX11 tuner to use instead of the tuner section of the receiver. Then I bought. Great progression you got going there. I dont have the Receiver 150 any longer, but Im hoping a lovely lady is STILL using it. I have another Receiver 150 in the closet along with a Receiver 2000, and a gorgeous HR742. In the last month I sold a couple of those MXR130 jobs, which are really stripped down Receiver 150 no rack handles, no wood side panels. When I was selling Carver stuff 199091 I mustve sold 50 of those HR752. Very popular. Ive never had a Receiver 900, but I saw and probably had the opportunity to purchase one a long time ago, and should have. It requires too much power. Always plug it into a wall outlet or into a power strip.I wouldnt have brought it up; except that the TFM35s manual doesnt state specifically that a wall outlet must be used. Whether thats true or not, I also dont know. But Im learning.which is why Im here.redface George, I think Ive been reading your posts here for a long while. Thank you for all your insight and comments. While on military assignment in Korea in 1990, all my Kenwood Pioneer Technics Infinity gear was stolen from storage here in the States. As a result, in a fit of desperation I bought the HR752 and also my first Polk Audio loudspeakers, RTA8ts. Best decisions I ever made. They floored me, and Ive never once looked back. I think it works well and still looks pretty good. My HR752 doesnt specify a specific outlet to use; but it has much less power than the TFM35. What youve said makes good sense, too; and Ill be using the wall. Thanks! We get some power spikes from time to time that I would rather not present to my gear if avoidable.

I already unplug the PowerCenter during thunderstorms as it is. I may try connecting it once, by itself, just to see if I hear any audible difference. If I can, Ill keep it unconnected. I appreciate your warning me about spikes. Aside from lightning, spikes are something else I havent considered. Thanks! If you want to get involved, click one of these buttons. Something went wrong. Remotes are available on Ebay. Works nicely, picks up. It may not display this or other websites correctly. You should upgrade or use an alternative browser. I tried looking for blown fuses and such, but the fuse is good. Any ideas what may be wrong with this. It had always been a great receiver and Id like to still use it. internal fuses. Have you taken off the bottom cover to check fuses? I'll look underneath the bottom to see if there is one. I did try plugging it into another outlet with no luck. I may end up sending it out for repair. I bought it new and have the remote, owners manual, and brochure.

Problem is they are gigantic. Might require a second bottle of the howards Are the Carver receivers even worth considering Thanks. I am seeking out two more right now. Quote Are the Carver receivers even worth considering Thanks. I cant imagine it would do a bad job as a headamp though. I would seek out information regarding how the headphone jack is wired. And a question I have Pioneer SX1250, works, a couple burnt out lights, antenna is broken, but seller has a replacement. It that about right, or should I be looking to negotiate But, aesthetically looks neglected dull wood; face a few scratches. Id try to negotiate a bit. Related to Pioneer SXxx50 and xx80 receivers, the one thing NOT to sweat about is the wood. Usually the existing wood casework can be brought back to life with just some 0000 steel wool, Howards restorafinish and FeednWax. I would much rather have one with some flaws in the wood that works perfectly than the other way around. Even replacing the function indicator lamps is a pretty major project with these Pioneers. Not necessarily cheaply if you want a good job done, but odds are really good that if you give a receiver a better wood case than its original, collectors are not nearly going to mind that as much as theyll mind that the innards were messed with. I am seeking out two more right now. I am not familiar with the Carver gear outside recommendations from my HT enthusiast friend. I cant imagine it would do a bad job as a headamp though. It that about right, or should I be looking to negotiate The amp and volume control is an iPod are not great.

Using a Line Out Dock cable bypasses iPod volume control and amp from an iPod to an amp can sound noticeably better. PCs typically dont sound that great either from the HP out. Both sources can audiophile sound quality if you use an external DAC with them to process their digital out signal. Myself, Id check the used market for value and pick it up, if I knew id be able to sell it if I didnt like the sound. Please note that the final Shipping cost besides shipping fees includes cost for packing materials such as cartons, bubble wrap, newsprint, Styrofoam, packing tape, etc. I take great pride in making sure that your item arrives in top condition. Proper packing necessitates the proper materials which cost money. I will not cut corners. Facts to Remember 1. My location is Montreal, Quebec in Eastern Canada 2.

Shipping rates are based on distance, therefore shipping to the West Coast will always be higher than rates to Eastern locations. Note to USA buyers International shipping from Canada to USA is more expensive than if you purchase from an American seller. 3. Postal shipping rates increase each January in Canada. This way you will know in advance exactly how much it will cost you to receive the item. Please do not bid on my items if you do not agree with these conditions. Thanks for looking and have a good day. Great overall condition. This amp operates flawlessly. Pulled from a professionally installed multi room home stereo. NOTE This is the third A500X amplifier I have listed. This is the last one available. I try my best to describe my items as truthfully and accurately as possible. Many of these items are collectibles oriented towards various hobbies of mine. Meaning that I care and appreciate the things I sell. If I do not know about certain specifics of any item I will acknowledge it. Please use photos to judge the items condition. If you have any questions please ask. I try to get to the post office about three times per week. If for any reason I take longer than 3 business days to ship your item I will let you know ASAP. I ship to the lower 48 states as well as through eBays global shipping program. The C7 is Carvers signature surfskate front truck, stuff and it has an incredible amount of pump and turning radius. It has a spring loaded swing arm that allows the nose of the board to sway slightly from side to side, essentially allowing you to snap your turns from the tail and pump effortlessly for speed. The CX is Carvers reversekingpin surfskate front truck, and it also has more pump and tighter turning than any other reverse kingpin truck on the market, but without any other parts. It has a similar feel to the C7 but is less extreme, so if you want a more familiar feel to your board but want to pump and surf, then the CX is the truck you want. The C1 preamp uses polarized capacitors and carbon composition resistors in the audio signal path. It also uses RN4136 opamps.

Opamps have been improved upon considerably since the days when the C1 was designed and built. You will be replacing two of the 4136 Opamps with the improved OPA2134 Opamps, hence the BrownDog adapter to help with the Form, Fit, and Function. This entire upgrade consists of three major steps1 Replace electrolytic signal caps with high grade nonpolarized audiorated caps, and replace the remaining electrolytic caps with new ones.2 Replace the chosen 5% carbon composition resistors with 1% metal film resistors.3 Replace the phono and lineout 4136 opamps with newer OPA2134A units. You will be in awe with the difference it will make in how your C1 preamp sounds. Completely assembled and ready to ride. The Lost x Carver Beanbag 28.
